

THE LAST CONGRESS TO COST THE U.S. TAXPAYERS ABOUT $1,025,489,662

LIVINGSTONE SAYS MILITARISM MENACE TO NATION AND 12 YEARS OF RITIOUS ROOSEVELT RULE MORTGAGED COUNTRY'S TREASURY.

Berlin, March 18.—A strange story is being told at the last session of congress aggregated $1,025,489,662, according to the statements issued to-day by former Representatives Tawney of Minnesota and Livingston of Georgia, who were, respectively chairman and ranking Democrat of the house appropriations committee in the last congress.

Tawney says this is less than $1,000,000 in excess of the total estimates of President Taft on which the appropriations are based. He pays high tribute to Taft for good faith in scrutinizing estimates and computes that the surplus of revenues next year will be not less than $26,571,000, which with any part of the treasury balance, may be applied to the sinking fund.

Against this Livingston says the last session record demonstrated that when the Democratic party comes into complete control of the government, "this billion-dollar mark for a session's appropriations established four years ago at the first session of the sixteenth congress, cannot be substantially lowered, if lowered at all."

Bright committees now consider and report appropriation bills and Mr. Tawney urges consolidation under one committee. The committee on appropriations, which reports more than half the total appropriations of congress, reported during the first regular session of the last congress $46,923,925 less than the estimates, while the appropriations by all the other appropriations committees, according to Tawney, were $27,931,102 in excess of the estimates.

Declaring that the Democrats want to save the people of this country from the danger which threatens them because of the rampant expenditure of their money, which has been going on for the last twelve years, Livingston contends that militarism is a menace and that Democratic action will prevent national bankruptcy.

He says it is a superhuman task to restore expenditure to a normal level, because of the enormous liability fastened on the treasury "by the statutory increase of the enlisted strength of the army and the navy fourfold since Mr. Roosevelt was so unhappily called to the executive office of the Republic."

CANADIAN LUMBERMEN

For every foot of timber that has been cut in Canada by lumbermen, at least seven feet have been destroyed by fire.

This startling statement is made in a bulletin of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, lately issued (Bulletin No. 5, "Forest Fires of 1909").

The author, Mr. H. H. MacMillan, one of the assistant inspectors of Forest Reserves, is a technically trained forester, who has given much attention to this subject. His figures have been based on the latest obtainable data, including a careful estimate of the stand of timber originally standing in the forests of Canada and that still remaining; the difference between these two, less the amount estimated to have been cut by lumbermen, represents the amount destroyed by fire.

Even this estimate of the ratio of timber burned to timber cut is not as large as some give elsewhere. Senator W. C. Edwards, the present president of the Canadian Forestry Association, and one of the best-known and most successful lumbermen of the Ottawa Valley, is on record as saying that in that valley ten times as much timber has been destroyed by fire as has been cut by the lumbermen.

The past summer has brought very prominently to public notice the forest fire problem, especially in regard to the fires in the States of Montana and Idaho and, more recently, in northern Minnesota, where so many towns were destroyed.

The Canadian Forestry Association has for years been endeavoring to arouse public attention in regard to these fires, and of late the work of the Commission of Conservation has been largely directed in the same direction.

In the bulletin above mentioned, there are also discussed at some length the topics of the destruction of Canadian forests by fire, the effects of these fires (in the destruction of timber and of soil, the effect on subsequent tree growth and on the conservation of the water supply) the chief causes of forest fires and the means of preventing such fires.

The bulletin concludes with a summary of Canadian forest fires during the year 1909 (in which, however, figures for Quebec are not included). This year was not a bad year for fires in the forest, the value of the timber and improvements destroyed being $210,100 (timber being valued at $1 per thousand). The expense of fire fighting (government and private) amounted to $231,821.42; except for the fire protection the loss would undoubtedly have been much greater.

Copies of this bulletin may be obtained, free of charge, on application to H. H. Campbell, superintendent of Forestry, Ottawa.

"Son of Apollo" Looked From Rejected Manuscripts to Greener Fields But Was Emphatic.

Toronto, March 18.—Newsday, boy tramp, pickpocket, piddler, stage "super," literature book thief—such has been the career of "Morton Ellis," now in Jefferson Market prison, New York, awaiting action of the grand jury for stealing books.

"Ellis," whose real name is Ellingsen, is the "son of Apollo" whose letters were printed by the column a few years ago. He wrote of the "land of crooks and yeagans" and "opium dens. Though not refined in either style or tone, his stories were full of vivid, unadorned color."

But Ellis was not satisfied with his meagre success as a literary man. He felt that his genius was not appreciated. In his own estimation he ranked with Poe and the Muses.

Long a dead-end, despondency over his lack of success as a literary man drove him further, and he had neither money, ability, nor application to recover himself. Finally, as no one gave him a chance to make a living out of literature legitimately, he determined to make it illegitimately—to turn his knowledge of good books to account by becoming a book-thief.

State Examining Corp.

One day when Ernest Drossel North returned from lunch to his store at No. 1 East Thirty-third street, he found a man waiting to show him some books which he had for sale. These were Las Casas "Tears of the Indians," Goldsmith's "Desert," first edition, and Walter Savage Landor's "Gipsy's Porridge Pot." These are all first-class books—the last copy of the Las Casas sold brought $50.

Mr. North looked over the books carefully, and decided to make an offer on the Las Casas. His offer was refused, the man insisting on selling all of the books or none. The man took his books and went away.

The next day Mr. North happened to look over the shelf where he keeps his "association books"—presentation and autograph copies, etc. He at once noticed that one of the books was missing—a first edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," inscribed "Mrs. Francis, with the author's best regards." This particular presentation copy is valued at $20.

Volume Was Given.

After a thorough search for the missing volume, Mr. North telephoned to two book-sellers where the book, if stolen, might likely be offered for sale. One of these notified a third member of the guild. The following Saturday the book was offered to this third bookseller. As he was sick at the time his son asked the man to answer on Monday. In the meantime Mr. North came down and positively identified his property.

Monday morning, Mr. North was at hand when the man returned to get his answer. He turned out to be a mild, pleasant, and surprised and explained that he had got the book from a downtown dealer, who said that he had bought it from a man who had had it in his family for a long time.

Following this clue the thief was at last spotted. In Jefferson Market police court he used the names of Brander, Matthews and the Rev. Thomas Slater, and claimed that he was "an honest bookseller like the rest."

With a stock of over seven thousand head of sheep they brought the drive through with a loss of less than one hundred during the winter.

GOD MISTAKEN.

An instructor in a church school where much attention was paid to sacred history, dwelt particularly on the phrase "And Enoch was not, for God took him." So many times was this repeated in connection with the death of Enoch that he, though even the dullest pupil would answer correctly when asked in examination: "State in the exact language of the Bible what is said of Enoch's death."

But this was the answer he got. "Enoch was not what God took him for."—Brooklyn Life.

AN OBVIOUS CASE OF AN UNWELCOME "BUTINSKI"

Probably as one of the last acts of his official career, Commissioner Bouillon submits his report on the gas question, in which he recommends that if some 27 conditions governing the granting of a franchise are fulfilled, that the franchise be granted to the International Heating and Lighting Company.

There are two reasons why Mr. Bouillon's report should not be considered by the council. The first is that it never was any part of Mr. Bouillon's job to declare what the policy of the city should be on any question. The second is the general principle that any agreement which needs 27 restraining provisos in order to make it safe for the city, is altogether too dangerous an agreement for the city to enter into, except under dire necessity.

This spectacle of Commissioner Bouillon, with his finish plainly in sight, spending the last hours of his tenure of power to try to force on a municipal-ownership city a corporation agreement is altogether too obvious a case of a man "butting in" and trying to give away something which does not belong to him.

When the figures are all before the ratemakers, they are quite competent to judge whether the city should go in for a civic gas plant or should farm out the privilege to some corporation; but the ratemakers do not require to have their policy doped out for them by an unwelcome employee who requires to go to the supreme court in order to stay in his job.

FROM DIFFERENT TANGENTS TO THE SAME END

A remarkable coincidence showing the tendency of public opinion toward direct legislation is furnished by the fact that while the Liberal and Radical parties in Great Britain are busy divesting the house of lords of the veto power the conservative party has come out flatly in favor of the referendum.

With a senate or upper house in control of the veto, direct legislation would be practically infeasible, but with the upper house out of existence the only feasible veto would be the referendum which would place the right to reject any law in the hands of the whole electorate.

The remarkable feature of the situation in Great Britain is that two parties diametrically opposed to each other on almost every point of policy should find themselves working at different tangents toward the same end, each being necessary to the consummation of the inevitable outcome, the investment of the power to govern in the hands of the people.

IS PROTECTION WORTH WHILE TO CANADA?

For thirty-five years a tariff agreement which purported to foster the industries of Eastern Canada has failed to prevent the migration of millions of Canadians from the centres of Canada to the United States, against which this protection was erected.

In the same thirty-five years, Western Canada, which tariff walls are powerless to protect because their produce is sold abroad, has managed to attract from United States hundreds of thousands of expatriated Canadians and many United States citizens besides.

If the eastern country, which is presumed to be the beneficiary of a protection policy, cannot hold for Canada the natural increase in her population, even with the aid of protection, while Western Canada, which is the victim of protection, attracts population in spite of the handicap of protection, the time has arrived for considering whether it is any use to try to hold the industries which scream for protection as a "fiend" does for the drug which has wrecked his vitality and enslaved his energy.

JAP BOGEY OVERWORKED IN UNITED STATES

A new phase to the action of United States in rushing troops to the Mexican border is supplied by the suggestion from Washington that it is not so much with an eye to the annexation of Mexico as it is with a realization of the possibility of Japan making war on United States that Uncle Sam makes the move.

To believe that Japan would come over and take possession of any part of Mexico in order to acquire a base of operations from which to attack United States seems a trifle far-fetched, to say the least, and certainly the Jap bogey is being overdone if the Washington explanation is the real one.

It is nevertheless true that war experts in United States have been proclaiming in a loud voice for the past three years that Japan has been preparing for war and that the little brown men do not propose to permit United States to complete the Panama Canal and become masters of the Pacific ocean without a fight.

With a friendly Mexican government which would carry out the wishes of Japan in times of peace with a view to making it easier for Japan in time of war, it is quite easy to understand that the intervening strip between United States and the canal might become the battle ground between the white and the brown race.

The chances of such a contest, however, are almost entirely eliminated by the circumstances that Japan is practically bankrupt as a result of the Russian war and in no condition to cross an ocean and wage a war with the richest and most resourceful country in the world, leaving at the same time her own interests in the far east unprotected from the Russian and the Chinaman, both of whom have a great many more reasons for wishing a war with Japan than Japan has for wishing a war with United States.

CONSULS WERE MALTREATED

New Manifestation of the Triple Alliance—The Constitution of Germanic Forces.

Constantinople, Mar. 17.—J. Hildey Carter, who has been placed at the head of the American embassy, with the rank of minister plenipotentiary, pending the appointment of a successor to Ambassador Strauss, has lodged a protest with the Porte against the assault and indignities to which the American consular representatives in Beirut and Alexandria were recently subjected.

It appears that a sergeant instigated a mutiny among fifty Turkish soldiers who were being transported on the steamer New Jersey. When that vessel reached Alexandria she was fired by the American flag and the American consular agent, John T. Peristany, went on board to investigate. There he was set upon by the soldiers and driven from the ship. During the attack his hand was cut and his coat was torn off.

Soldiers Arrested.
The local police arrested some of the soldiers but the captain of the New Jersey refused to surrender the sergeant, the ringleader. The vessel proceeded subsequently to Smyrna, where there was a second row over the question of whether the soldiers or the sailors of the New Jersey were primarily at fault. When the vessel docked, its second mate was arrested. At this stage of the quarrel the American consular general, Ernest L. Harris, took hand, with the result that he was roughly abused by the varying factions. However, he brought about the arrest of the sergeant.

When the news of the trouble reached the United States, the department among the shipping men declared a boycott against the owners of the New Jersey.

Acting upon advice, the American embassy here promptly took the matter up with the Turkish government and in addition to protesting against the treatment of Mr. Peristany and Mr. Harris, made representations regarding the boycott at Salonki. Later the embassy received assurances that adequate measures to stamp out the boycott had been taken.

Life-Saving Incident.

DASHED UNDER MOUTHS OF GUNS

Heroic Exploit of "Condor" Charlie Is Vividly Recalled.

London, Eng., March 18.—After more than fifty years' service in the Navy, Admiral Lord Charles Bessborough has retired, having reached the age at which that step becomes imperative under the regulations. That he feels deeply the final separation from the service he loved, and in which he was one of the most popular of the higher officers, one cannot doubt. And the regret will be felt keenly among those he leaves behind.

But he will take into retirement the high satisfaction of knowing that he has won the approval of three Sovereigns the deep affection of his nation, and the esteem of all with whom he had been brought into contact during his professional career.

Having joined the Britannia, as a naval cadet in 1859, he was after appointment to the Marlborough, and subsequently to the Defence. And although at that moment there were no opportunities to earn the approval of the country upon a field of battle or upon the sea, he was not long before he was a sample of the kind of work that might be expected from him when the opportunity came.

It was while serving in the Defence that he saved the first of several lives by his courage. The ship was lying in the Mersey, when a stout went up that there was a man overboard. Without an instant's delay young Bessborough leaped to the rail, and from thence dived into the water, holding up his man until a boat could be sent to his assistance. For his pluck he was awarded the medal of the Royal Humane Society, which, with its bar for further acts of courage and lifesaving, is still doubtless one of his most cherished trophies.

Before telling the story of the incident that saved the credit of the brave officer. He had but three years' service, and was still on the Defence, when it happened. Indeed, it was only a few months after the incident for which he received the medal already referred to. The ship was lying in

John Bay, and a boat was going ashore with some thirty men. Before the occupants had quite settled down one of them fell into the water. Bessborough was scarcely more than a boy and in his earlier days was but a weak little chap. But he had strong courage, and without hesitation went to the assistance of the drowning man. For this he was awarded the medal of another society.

It was in January, 1882, that he obtained command of the Condor, one of the gunboats of the Mediterranean squadron, and six months later he was the hero of the incident that has remained firmly fixed in the romantic side of military reminiscence ever since.

The British fleet, under Admiral Sir P. B. Seymour, was engaged in the bombardment of Alexandria. The enemy were effectively repelling, and when, in the course of the bombardment, the Tencarene went ashore, she was in considerable danger from the guns of the fort.

Disabled Tencarene.
The Marlborough had been particularly active in throwing its projectiles in dangerous proximity to the Condor, and the disabled Tencarene and the commander of the little gunboat determined to pay her back with some of her own kind.

An order was given, and in a moment those who were watching saw almost with horror that the Condor was in the zone of the fire, and engaging in a duel with them.

For a time those who witnessed the incident almost held their breath, expecting to see the little craft sink, with a well-placed shot inside her mortars. The odds were appalling, but the little gunboat shot her fire at the flame-telegraph masts of guns overhead, and the enemy could not resist their aim sufficiently to get at the little ship that was sinking so disgracefully from below, the signal had been run up from the commander-in-chief's flagship. "Well done, Condor!" Bessborough's name was at once another success of the nation as that of a British sailor of the type of which the country and the empire have been proud.

There has been a navy and an empire, and a British sailor of the type of which the country and the empire have been proud.

David Warfield is making such a success in "The Return of Peter Grimm," that he will remain there until the close of the season. He will not be seen in New York until next fall.

The patents on the Hercules Rotary engine, which is now on exhibition at 114 Jasper avenue west, provide for the application of an entirely new principle in steam engineering and make possible a saving in fuel and an economy of space which promises to revolutionize the whole business of steam power production.

The invention is a purely Canadian invention, Mr. Call, the inventor, being a resident of Wetaskiwin, where the company's head office and plant is now located. The invention is fully covered by patents in Canada, United States, Great Britain, Germany, Holland and Japan.

The stock of the company, which is now being placed on the market, is being sold for the purpose of developing the engine, adding new patent rights in foreign lands and placing the engine on the markets of the world.

The company proposes to derive its profits from royalties paid by engineering firms for the right to manufacture the engine.

The fact that the Hercules Rotary will make possible a saving of more than 25 per cent. in fuel, promises great profit for the stockholders of the company. Some idea of the possibilities may be gathered from the fact that in the British navy alone there are fourteen millions of steam horse power in use, and that this is only a minor fraction of the amount of steam power used in Great Britain. A royalty of one dollar per horse power on engines manufactured under the Hercules patents would aggregate millions for the stockholders of the company.

Under its patents the company also covers the right to apply the same principle to gasoline and gas engines, thereby furnishing a vast and rapidly growing field for exploitation by the company.

The figures on this engine are almost too great for the belief of the mechanic, but after looking at the model he can readily see where the secret lies. Mr. Call, the inventor, is pleased to meet mechanical men and explain the engine to them in all its details, also point out the steam consumption of this engine as compared with other engines. This engine is adaptable to all kinds of loads where steam power is used, more especially marine and direct-connected generating work. In marine work, especially, there is an unlimited field on account of its non-vibrating feature and quick reverse; also the saving of steam means not only less coal, but less boiler space, less help required to handle, and an increase in cargo in proportion to space and weight gained.

At its Wetaskiwin works, the company is now just completing a triple expansion compound engine of 400 horse power which will be on exhibition within a few days and which will be put to the most severe tests in order to demonstrate the practicability of the principle and patents.

The company is at all times ready to submit to the most searching investigation and invites all mechanical men acquainted with the applied science of steam power production to call at McManus Bros. and inspect the model, where the inventor will be present to make any explanations desired.

The company being in its infancy and holding such valuable rights, the time to buy stock is now. Purchasers can confidently expect very handsome profits in the very near future, and the fact that the company holding these rights is a strictly Alberta company, its directors being comprised of well-known Alberta men, assures them a fair handling of their money.

Only 250 shares of stock are being offered in Edmonton, at par. When this stock is sold, it is altogether unlikely that any more stock will be offered at the present price, and quite possibly no more will be sold by the company at any price.

Applications for stock at par value will be taken by the agents. Parties living outside the city may make application for stock by mail to the Edmonton agents of the company. All applications will be filled in the order in which they are received, and the company does not guarantee delivery. All applications must be accompanied by marked check, money order or certified draft. No stock will be held unless this condition is complied with.

FUNCTION VOTED COMPLETE SUCCESS

Concert and Dance Given by Edmonton Irish Association Was Well Attended.

The St. Patrick's night celebration held under the auspices of the Edmonton Irish Association in the separate school hall will rank as one of the outstanding events of the season. The third ball given under the auspices of the association, it was by all counts the most successful, and St. Patrick's day has never been more fittingly celebrated in Edmonton. The musical programme—in all Irish programme, by the way, was one of the most delightful that the people of a city wealthy in local talent, have been privileged to hear, and its success reflects great credit on the two members of the management committee, Messrs. G. A. Clappett, and P. Dunn, who had charge of the musical features of the evening. All the wild and weird beauty of the Ireland of history and tradition, and the pathos and light-heartedness and romance of the Irish people, were portrayed by music. Special mention must be made of the double quartette, "Off in the stilly night," and the male quartette, all of which called forth enthusiastic applause. The little impromptu concert which preceded the ball was one of the most delectable features of the evening. The concert opened at 8 o'clock, and at 11:15, after light refreshments had been partaken of the catering was excellent, dancing commenced, and it was not until the day consecrated to Ireland's patron saint had been left some hours behind that the couples began to disperse. In all there were over four hundred persons present at the concert and ball, members of the association wore the insignia of their order, while the ladies of patriotic organizations of the sister nations were much in evidence. Special care was provided this morning for the convenience of the guests.

Comment should be made upon the good taste which had been displayed by those members of the association who were responsible for the decoration of the hall. The festoon work was admirably carried out, and the dance in the dim green light shed by the shamrock leaf illumination, was beautiful in the extreme. The musical programme is given below:

the only members of council not on the special committee. In the end the items in the report were passed one by one, the suggestion of Mr. Ewing that the contractors be notified of the possibility of their being held up somewhat during the work of installation, being considered favorably by the council.

A great deal of local and outside tenders were on hand, for the supply of cement, sewer pipes, and lead and galvanized pipes. The council merely opened the tenders without quoting earned being given the correspondence figures, the various committees consulted and charged to bring in reports at the Tuesday night's session.

Ald. Barford reported reaching an agreement with Mr. McKenzie for the leasing of old fire hall as automobile garage. Mr. McKenzie promising to pay all extra insurance necessary. As a return in part the city will allow a warehouse near the station for the storage of sewer pipes, etc. Report adopted.

Post Office Resolution.
Ald. Calder presented a resolution calling for prompt action on the part of the Ottawa officials in regard to the re-letting of the new post office contract, in Strathcona. The resolution was endorsed unanimously and a copy was immediately despatched by wire to J. M. Douglas, M.P. The resolution reads:

"Whereas by the death of Mr. Wm. Garson, of Calgary, contractor for the new deemed advisable by his executors post office building at Strathcona, it has to cancel this contract.

And as the building season is now at an order that the building may be commenced an immediate start is necessary plotted this year.

Therefore be it resolved that we, the Strathcona city council, respectfully urge upon the Minister of public works Ottawa, the necessity for re-letting the contract immediately."

Quarter Section Bids $24,000.
One of the best really sales reported for some time past was that through this week by Mr. A. E. Lattimer of this city who disposed of a quarter section of land some distance southeast of the corporation limits for $24,000. This property is known as Victoria Park and lies one mile south of the city limits and east of the C.P.R. line about one half mile. The subdivision was purchased by the Sterling Securities, Ltd., will lease offices in Edmonton, and the land is already being surveyed with a view of having it placed on the market by April 1st. Mr. Lattimer the late owner bought the land about four years ago for $15,000.

Mr. Emerson, president and manager of the Sterling Securities, says it is the Intention of the company to have about 60 acres of their newly acquired property nearest the city, surveyed into the usual residential lots. The remainder of the quarter will be sub-divided into smaller blocks, each of which will comprise about nine of these ordinary sized lots. Mr. Emerson thinks the land should command a ready sale amongst house-sellers since it will be traversed by the southeast line of the C.N.R., served by the southwest route junction visible in all probability it will also be of the same system. Offices of the company will shortly be established in Strathcona.

Negro Girl Attempted Runaway.
A case of more than ordinary interest will come up for hearing before Magistrate Hennes this morning, in which several negroes of the district will be implicated. A fifteen year old negro girl named Mattie Simpson, prohibited the trouble by running away from her parental home in the Rabbit Hill neighbourhood last Tuesday and making her way to Calgary by the afternoon train.

The father, Taylor Simpson, followed the girl, closely and had her taken in custody immediately upon her arrival in the southern city. Chief Robinson of the city police went down after the girl Wednesday and returned last night with his charge, who was met and taken home by her father, to re-appear in court this morning. The girl denies the allegations of her father.

Strathcona Locals.
The undergraduates of the University held another session of their mock parliament in the Collegiate last evening and it is said to have been one of the most interesting sittings of the body to date. The budget introduced by minister of public works, Hargreaves, to incorporate the Alberta Railway, the mover leading off in the debate. Leader of the opposition Nolan spoke very ably and was well supported by Messrs. Gaunt, Mosemer and others from the anti-government row. Several members argued for the government and some really excellent speeches are reported.

The plain event with the St. Patrick's Day celebrators last night was the concert given under the auspices of St. Anthony's Ladies' Aid in St. Anthony's Hall. A splendid programme rendered and appreciated by a large number of local and visiting people. The day in Strathcona did not elapse very quietly and the police had an easy time. A number of celebrators were making a sad attempt at pedestrianism last night but the majority managed to keep within the legal requirements.

Commencement Sunday night Rev. J. M. Miller of Knox church will conduct a series of sermons on "The Centinities of Faith," the first subject being Christianity a Revolution form God."

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Campbell enterained a large number of Knox Sunday school workers at dinner Thursday evening in the home on Fifth street east. Covers were laid for forty and a very happy evening was spent in games and other diversions.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Edith Wilson died Wednesday evening, the funeral being held yesterday morning. Ex-Alderman O. Bush and wife returned home this week from an extended pleasure trip spent on the Pacific coast, the greater part of their time being spent in southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Dale, who have been in the order visiting in Ontario, returned to the city yesterday.

Rev. Father Carragher of Leduc, will conduct services in St. Anthony's church tomorrow.

The Local Council of Women will meet Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the council chamber. Members from the Edmonton branch will address the meeting.

Barney Mullin Tells of How Son of Erin Changed His Set on Stanley Ketchel.

Besides being a good boxer and one whose general behavior is such as to elevate the sport, Barney Mullin is an exceptionally entertaining raconteur as to the incidents which have marked his connection with the game of fist-fights. And yesterday being St. Patrick's Day, it was but natural that Barney's recitals should flow into the Irish channel. Friends of Barney never tire of listening to him tell some of the little things coming under his observation while he was connected with Stanley Ketchel's training camp, and yesterday afternoon Barney told this one, only he used the Irish, which improves it greatly.

"During Ketchel's training for his battle with Jack (Twin) Sullivan, we were camped at Miller's, near San Francisco. O'Gorman, Stanley's manager, the great fighter himself, and others of the party had gone to the city for the day and I had decided to stay at the camp. During the afternoon, I started for a stroll and had reached the Nine Mile House when I was beckoned by a stranger standing on the veranda.

"You're connected with the training bunch of Ketchel's, aren't you?" inquired the stranger.

"I told him I was."

"Well, I'm sorry for you, for this fellow Sullivan will beat this Polander or whatever his nationality can be. No Polander, or Russian, can beat this Irishman Sullivan. I've bet my money on the Irish."

"You're entirely wrong about the nationality of Ketchel," I answered him.

"His father is an American-born Polander but his mother is Irish and right from the Old Sod and Ketchel was born right in Ireland, while they were there on a visit to her mother, and Stanley thinks of the Irish."

"His mother is Irish, and right from the Old Sod, is she? You know I always did think the world of that boy's fighting. From the Old Sod, he is. Yes, sir, always did figure that boy was a great one and might beat that Sullivan man. And Ketchel was born in Ireland. I think I'd better give my bet right now."

And the patriotic Irishman was none other than Pat Devine, one of the best known characters in California.

Twenty-four years ago Boston bought Mike Kelly for $100,000 and forced him to sign a $2,000 limit on the salary limit at that time. What would modern players say to a $2,000 salary limit?

He Pays Wager

Arthur Thinet Loves and Reels a Peas-nut For an Entire Block at Ottawa.

Art Guerin, of a well-known sign painting firm, of Ottawa, is a great admirer of the Ottawa hockey team. Arthur Thinet, one of the employees of the establishment, thinks the Canadians are the greatest that ever was. Hence the cause of a little excitement on an Ottawa main street recently.

Guerin agreed to roll a peanut with a footpick the whole length of the Garland block on Queen street if Canadians beat Ottawa, provided Thinet did the same if Canadians were beaten. The bet was clinched yesterday, and at noon to-day a couple of hundred people had the time of their lives watching Thinet boost the peanut fifty yards along the pavement with a footpick.

Harry Thompson acted as referee and aimed with a whistle blew it every time Thinet shoved the tiny load. Only rolling went. A stout rope was attached to Thinet's waist in case he attempted to decamp of the footpick.

The loser of the wager covered the distance in fifteen minutes and was in at the finish. Guerin looked on with derisive glances while Thinet plodded away with the footpick.

BIG LEAGUE NOTES

Some one tied a yellow ribbon on G. L. Duffie's coat last yesterday morning. And McHugh is to tell the tale.

Ever notice that when Edmonton signs a man, Calgary folks declare he is no good. But when they learn that the syndicate, which is composed of W. W. Finn, who built the tracks at Hot Springs, Ark., Cheyenne, Wyo., and Salt Lake City; M. D. Wright, banker and sawmill operator at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; J. H. Winford, E. S. Shelton and "Jack" Stevens, of Spokane, have acquired 74 acres of land in the Spokane valley just across the Washington-Idaho state line, within 20 miles of Spokane, where a mile-track with steel grandstand and stables will be built.

Finn announced in Spokane to-day that material has been ordered and it is expected to start 100 carpenters and 100 men and teams at work on the grandstand and the course early in April. It is supposed to make the track the fastest in the country.

"We are in a position to offer his purse and run the meetings in first-class style, absolutely on the square," Finn said. "We will select officials against whom there has never been a breath of suspicion, and the public will always get a run for its money. With adequate purses we can command the best horses from the tracks in various parts of the United States and Canada. The absence of anti-gambling laws in the Idaho code will offset any opposition by the reformers.

"The track will be on the line of three important steam railways, the Spokane and Coeur d'Alene electric line and the automobile road between Spokane and Coeur d'Alene, thus affording first-class transportation facilities."

SPORT CHIPS OF ALL SORTS

While the Edmonton team was playing at Winnipeg last season, things were not going good for the Maroons. A Winnipeg sympathizer sitting in the stands became annoyed at Moose Baxter because he was getting them right and left and up in the air and in the dirt. As Moose passed the grandstand, the Maroon fan began to knock:

"You top-sided, stew-footed, bench-legged son of a windjammer cook," said the irate fan, "you a first baseman!" Laughter. "You remind me more of a cross between a Methodist prayer meeting and a Chinese richshaw than anything else. You couldn't earn a living honestly, so you are deluding yourself."

"I have watched only Jackson and Gregg. I don't know much about the others, but I would be willing to let the Cleveland club have a big chunk of my money, if I can grab off several of those young men and take a chance on them."

Sam Langford is matched to meet Mevey on March 25th at a Paris Club.

Talk about a fight between Sam Langford and Joe Jeannotte has amounted to nothing. A contest has now been arranged between Langford and Mevey, which will take place in Paris on March 25. The bout is scheduled for 20 rounds. There was considerable kicking before this match was brought about. Mevey signed a contract some time ago with Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter, to meet Langford. He afterwards backed out of this agreement on the ground that he had signed the contract subject to the approval of his manager, the latter objected to the contract, because the purse was too small. After a week spent in letter writing McIntosh offered to give Mevey 2,500 francs if he dared merely to appear in the ring with Langford. The match for the 25th was then arranged.

NAPS' FINE DEAL

Hughie Fullerton, Chicago base ball crick, has come on record with the statement that he would not give $3 for 11 Cleveland nuts.

The Naps included in this list of Fullerton's unfortunates:

Pitchers—Fred Blanding, Eugene Krupp, Earl Yarnall, Van Grege and H. Harrison De Mott.

Catchers—Grover C. Land, Gus Fisher, John Adams and Sidney Smith.

Outfielders—Joe Jackson.

Infielders—Ivan Olson.

President Navin of the Detroit club was asked what he would give for the 11 players whom Fullerton offers an average of 27.27 cents each.

The tier chief smiled several minutes when he heard the offer, then expostulated:

"I will give the Cleveland club $15,000 this very day for Jackson and Gregg. More than that, I'll be real charitable—I will give Mr. Fullerton $1,000 if he can get these two men from the Cleveland club for me for $12,000. He can have the $1,000 for if I had the opportunity I would send my bank-roll on several others in that crowd."

"I have watched only Jackson and Gregg. I don't know much about the others, but I would be willing to let the Cleveland club have a big chunk of my money, if I can grab off several of those young men and take a chance on them."

During the evening, the mile boxes, which had been distributed among the members of the society, were opened. They were found to contain about six dollars worth of goods, which sum is to be devoted to missionary work in the city.

was now practically for a declaration as to the competency of aldermen to vote on the dismissal of the commissioner.

Mr. Biegar contended that the attorney had been brought in by the public when the interests of all the public of the province were involved. When a section of the province was concerned, he should not intervene.

His lordship dissented from this view.

A dispute which occupied several minutes of the court's time arose upon the objection of Mr. Walsh that no proof had been brought that Mr. Gallagher was a ratepayer. Mr. Walsh absolutely declined to accept affidavit on this matter, and evidence will be produced to prove Mr. Gallagher a ratepayer at a later stage.

Mr. Walsh declared that the grant of the application of the plaintiff would constitute Commissioner Boulden practically "perpetual commissioner" of the city of Edmonton. He characterized the action as a technical one throughout.

Mayor Armstrong said that he had been an alderman of the city in 1909 and 1910, being elected to the majority by acclamation in December, 1910. He was a member of a committee appointed last spring to make a selection of a commissioner, but did not serve on the committee. He was present at the meeting at which Commissioner Boulden was appointed to office by unanimous vote for complicity against the city.

His worship then traced the developments of the past few months, down to the time when the public work committee recommended that the council should employ into the civic representatives. The four of enquiries made February 14. There were no enquiries on which some of the aldermen were absent during the course of the meeting. The department of the department did not strike the members of the council as being satisfactory. All of the aldermen, a dissenting opinion, Commissioner Boulden as to the state of the departments. Aldermen Mould and Lundy took notes "poor business" appeared to characterize much of what the commissioners had done, and it was decided to meet together in the council chamber, call all commissioners together and ask for an explanation.

Commissioner Boulden was asked how often he had visited No. 5 (freed from the construction).

"That was as far as we got," Commissioner Boulden said that he would not answer any questions before a committee of which Alderman Mould was a member, described the meeting as a star chamber.

Commissioner Boulden said that only instruments of torture were needed to make the analogy complete. The members were made to parry the Commissioner but he declared that he would only answer questions in his own way.

Though the council were willing to give him time to answer any questions which he might wish to ask, they could not agree to recognize his objection. The council had thirty and questions to submit but never got further than the first.

"Two hours were spent in session," "How were the two hours spent?"

"The commissioner became abusive."

and styled the aldermen as cheap politicians and peasant politicians and said he would not answer any of their questions unless they were submitted in a way that he wished himself.

At last, when in spite of remonstrances, the commissioner declined to answer, witness proposed that the council adjourn, since no progress could be made.

There was no meeting of the committee between the morning of that meeting, and the evening session of that day (February 21) when a certain resolution was introduced.

"No, there was individual discussion only."

Referring to the passage of the resolution dismissing Commissioner Boulden, his worship.

What he had made up the session that if Commissioner Boulden could answer all the questions that there would be no ground for his dismissal. On the other hand very serious objections were taken to his action in various ways, and his management of certain things in the departments.

His worship cited instances in which the commissioner had used insulting language to the witness and elsewhere.

Mr. Biegar here objected on the ground that it was not for the court to enquire whether cause existed for the dismissal of the commissioner. It was purely a question of law.

"For the purpose of this action," he said, "it may be assumed that there was cause. Supposing there was cause, it is absolutely immaterial for the purposes of the action."

Pressed by Mr. Walsh to make a definite admission on these lines and so save the taking of much evidence, Mr. Biegar said that "he was not prepared to admit that there was cause, but he was prepared to admit that he thought that there was cause."

Mr. Biegar said that he did not want to enquire whether cause existed, as he had no experience in political actions had him to introduce such a matter here.

It was finally admitted that the council acted for "cause," Mr. Biegar reserving the privilege of introducing evidence and bias disqualified certain of the aldermen.

Minutes Also Disapproved

Here Mr. Walsh addressed evidence regarding the alleged "annexed" minutes of the council meeting at which Superintendent McNaughton was dismissed.

"At that meeting, I demanded specific cause to be embodied in the minutes of the meeting, and particularly by demand of Commissioner Boulden his reasons. Mr. Boulden said: 'I reserved the privilege of introducing evidence and bias disqualified certain of the aldermen.'"

"The minutes were disapproved of at a subsequent meeting at which Mayor Armstrong was not present. Commissioner Boulden had instructed the stenographer to make a change in the minutes as a result of action taken at that meeting. For this reason his worship declined to sign the minutes and they were not signed later."

"You pledge your oath that at time of introduction of motion of January 10 (the public work committee) there was no understanding of prejudice against the commissioner" to make "None whatever."

His worship said that he had telephoned Mr. Walsh subject to the appearance of an interview in the papers in which the alderman spoke in a derogatory manner of the commissioner, telling Ald. Mould that he had no intention of accepting affidavit on this matter, and evidence will be produced to prove Mr. Gallagher a ratepayer at a later stage.

Mayor Armstrong did not admit that the intention of the adoption of the report of the public work committee was a vote of censure on the commissioner.

"The council," said Mr. Biegar, "were responsible for allowing the indignity of an attack on a commissioner by an alderman through the newspapers."

"Why were the superintendents of departments and dismissed sent to the present at the meeting of the council called to make enquiries from the public work committee, a meeting from which the press were excluded?"

To either substantiate or show no grounds for complaints against the commissioner. They had made statements to us and we asked the superintendents to come up to show whether they were true or not."

As trustees of the people we found it our duty to inquire into the matter which required to be inquired into, and the way to find answers to these was to give the commissioners and the superintendents an opportunity to speak upon the questions under dispute."

"If Mr. Boulden had said that he was not prepared to introduce a certain number of times, what would have been your next question?"

"We would have asked an explanation as to its defects."

"What if he had said I didn't do it?" "I don't know."

Under further examination his worship pointed out that it had been the hope of the council that when the public utility commissioner was censured, disqualifications in city work would disappear.

"Do you think that the proceedings at the equity were fair?"

"Were the heads of departments present for the purpose of giving evidence against the commissioner if the necessary arose?"

"No, they were there to answer any questions that we might ask them regarding the discrepancies. It was under them that the discrepancies arose."

"What did you think Mr. Boulden was present for?"

"To give the council a dressing down, and he did it."

"And you deserved it?"

"I don't think that we did."

"I examined by Mr. Walsh, Mayor Armstrong said that on two occasions Commissioner Boulden had come in to his residence and asked to be allowed to answer any questions which might arise in connection with the inquiry. He had used abusive language on both occasions."

"Can you suggest any fairer way of investigating matters of this kind that has been conducted by the committee?"

"No, I know of no other fairer."

Mr. Boulden's objection to what was being said by the committee here, "matter of anger because the council were looking into matters."

At one check the court adjourned, resuming at two.

SLAUGHTERHOUSE MAY BE REOPENED

Mayor Armstrong and members of the industrial committee of the city council have been considering the citizens of Norwood to discuss the reopening for a short period of the Norwood slaughterhouse, which is now closed.

Application has been made by the company for permission to use the slaughterhouse, which is now closed by an injunction, until such time as their new plant is ready for business. The old plant would not be used until it was made perfectly sanitary.

It was made perfectly sanitary, including Mr. Lewis, opposed the measure, but in the end the council decided to open the slaughterhouse for a short period.

During the second act, though, Peter forgot all about his conscience. He was enjoying the show. His countenance was joyful and his life eyes were bright. "What do you think of it now, Peter?" asked his friend.

AUTO

All That is Doing in the Great and the Busy World Of the Chug-Chug Wagons

AUTO

AGED DRIVER HERO AT WHEEL

P. A. Maboe, 60 years of age, of Odessa, Ontario, has just completed an exploit which explodes the theory advanced by Mr. Osler. The venerable Canadian, after a few hours' instruction, piloted an automobile over the treacherous Canadian highways from Windsor to his home village.

Paul Taylor of Sandwich, a short time ago owned a touring car—a second-hand machine. He advertised it for sale and the advertisement met the eye of the man from Odessa. Maboe inquired by mail and followed up his inquiry in person, going to Windsor where he was informed by Taylor over the telephone that the car was at the factory; that the price was so-and-so, and that—well, he could leave the money and take the car if the price suited him.

Maboe looked over the car and decided to leave the money. The auto people informed Taylor by phone and when the vendor and purchaser a few hours later met in person for the first time, Taylor greeted the new purchaser of the car with the question: "Are you going to ship it?"

"No, sir," replied the new owner. "I'm going to drive the car home."

"But," protested Mr. Taylor, "are you taking down any one who understands the car?"

"No," was the determined reply. "I'm going alone."

To Taylor's inquiry if he had ever driven a motor car before, Maboe rejoined quite serenely that this was his first attempt.

"Do you know the road home?" asked Mr. Taylor dubiously.

"No," was the answer, "but I can find which way is east. I think I can manage it."

Taylor was falling heavily when Maboe left Walkerville. Between Windsor and Toronto the roads were in a frightful condition. Taylor tried to dissuade the old gentleman from making the trip unaccompanied but all he received in exchange for his sympathy was the pious assurance that there was "no fool like this fool, he was determinedly ahead of it in a few hours. Unflinching by an old fool—and a fool for luck."

All that Maboe knew about the auto-with his project. Four days later, after battling with mud, hail and rain, the old gentleman arrived in his car at his home in Odessa.

But assuredly it was a tremendous battle for one inexperienced in the ways of automobiles. There is a note of reverence in the way which Maboe speaks of his exploit, "that I was not wrecked and possibly killed," he says, "is the providence of God, I saw how experienced men at driving were helpless with a skidding car. My machine skidded and struck for a deep ditch and the sight of that ditch will never leave my memory. I checked the machine just in time and saved the day, but the power by which I stopped the machine was of God. I am now home without one mishap."

"My dreadful experience will be of inestimable value now that I am home and can rest out and become tranquil once more. Four hundred and sixty-five miles of continuous driving for four days to an inexperienced driver was simply too much for me, and when I reached home I was exhausted, both mentally and physically."

And the 60-year-old hero of the feat adds a word of two of high praise for his car.

AUTO DON'TS

Don't start on an extended trip without attention to oil, gasoline and water. Don't go on an extended trip without testing your battery.

Don't fail to keep your brakes adjusted. It is more necessary to be able to stop the car than to start it.

Don't neglect to keep your lamps filled. You may need the light badly some time.

Don't leave the car alone with the motor running.

Don't stop the car on the wrong side of the street.

Don't drive faster than the law allows.

Don't fail to release the hand brake before attempting to start.

Don't "jump" the car by quick opening of the throttle.

The following statistics compiled from the most reliable sources demonstrate in the most forcible manner the effect of the industry on the industrial situation of the world:

Estimated mileage for year, 1,705,375,000.
Automobiles made in the United States, 187,000.
Estimated horsepower, according to A.L.A.M. rating, 6,000,000.

It would take 100 pounds of $10.00 bills to buy the year's product.
New American cars four abreast would stretch across New Jersey.
In trains they would reach from New York to Denver.
Jersey licenses for one minute visit, $187,000.
Average cost of cars is lower $1,645.93.

EARLY DAYS OF THE AUTO

Some interesting notes regarding the early days of the automobile are given in a recent issue of the Automobile.

In view of the radical change in sentiment regarding the use of the automobile and the fact that their manufacture is now the third most important industry in the world, they will be of general interest to those who have only taken up its use during the last two years.

The following are excerpts from the article in question:

"R. L. Hains, a correspondent writing from Camden, N. J., about 1902, excitedly refers to the sentiment expressed by the governor of New Jersey in his message to the state legislature, to the effect that 'he can see nothing good in the trusts, and that the only evil in the state is the automobilists and their deadly machinery.' His excellency winds up by urging a manufacturers' law 'that will be just to all.'"

"The first abbreviation of carriage to

"car" was observed in the announcement of a new 12-horsepower Packard, model C, early in 1903. The engine had a high compression and its maximum speed was 850 r. p. m.

"Attention was called about this time to the disappearance of the belt drive system, 'skidding' gears being now supreme. Electrical transmission is now being used to a very limited extent by French automobile makers."

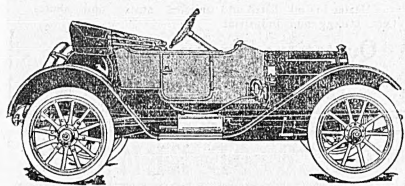

"Nautical searchlights are being adopted to the needs of motorists who seek the delirious of illegal speeds in the hours of dusk and in 'deserted roads,' was one comment in the newspapers about that time. 'Motoring with a searchlight is a novel innovation.' Some Port Richmond, Staten Island people upon discovering an automobile in the distance throwing out its searchlight mistook it for the tail of a comet and ran into the house and hid out of sheer fright."

"The brush patents on electric storage batteries expired by the seventeen year limit, in March, 1903. The probable effect on the automobile industry was discussed thus: 'It is urged by many that improvements which heretofore have been made in the storage battery in under the market price, and (therefore) by demand, will now be generally introduced."

"In proof of editorial good will to all the world this paragraph was published in the Automobile. 'Nobody can in fairness object to the importation of European-built automobiles, so long as they are sold on fair representation. If importers can do this over a 45-tariff bar, they are entitled to their success.'"

"The question of the standard gauge early engaged the attention of automobile manufacturers. The standard American railway gauge is 56 1/2 inches. The wagon gauge, or track, is 56 inches. One writer remarked: 'There is more in the matter than the first glance reveals. Shown, by feet, the automobile industry 'standard' measures 54 inches, about as often as it does 56 inches. This excludes the narrow gauge and scattering returns, from 18 to 52 1/2, in the country the gauge is measured from centre to centre of the rails. The country gauge is 54 inches in most sections, but not small. For example, in New Jersey the gauge is 50 inches from centre to centre, in Rhode Island it is 62 inches. From the constructor's point of view, other 'standard' gauges are six inches wide for most effective use of material."

NEED ORGANIZED WORK

In the Western states, where good roads are doing so much to open up the country for further development, there seems at present to be a need for more and better organized work in the construction of more of these highways. There are so many highway projects, and so many projected plans, that all certainly cannot succeed at the present time. As a result, the leaders in the highway movement have decided to centralize their work and labor on single worthy projects. The Pacific Highway is an example of one of these foundation plans, and by organized work in the coast states and British Columbia its early completion is practically assured.

In Oregon, in particular, where systems of highways leading out from the cities have been rejected, the citizens are finding it to their advantage to concentrate on one project at a time and thus assure early completion of some of the roads planned. On the Pacific highway project the Oregonians have found an outlet for their energies, and by working for a highway which will cross the entire broad west will become a part of a coast-long road they feel that they are making an excellent beginning.

Road Bills in Washington
Washington people are adopting the same system and are now considering their legislature a bill calling for a small tax whereby the funds may be furnished with which to build their portion of the Pacific highway. It will be an easy matter after a roadway has been built across the state and an opportunity given for its worth to be demonstrated, to begin work upon a system of highways.

In Canada there is not so much opposition to the part of the rural population when it comes to road work for they already have many miles of profit-yielding thoroughfares. They accomplished the first part of their work by directing all their forces toward single worthy projects.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Mar. 18.—The exhibition of spring styles in the leading shops shows a great variety of one-piece gowns, although their variety depends almost exclusively upon the difference in materials, colors, trimmings and superficial variations of design. The general characteristic of silhouette being practically the same in every case. Next one-piece walking frocks, are the most early spring use, are displayed in large numbers. They range from the severe tailored model to delectable soft little frocks of silk or chiffon or marquisette dainty enough for afternoon uses, yet short, simple and dark enough to be practical for street wear.

The frocks representing a more severe type are developed chiefly in the fine tulle serges and light weight woolens of soft, firm weave. The dark blacks, almost invariably trimmed in black, are of course universal favorites, but there are some very smart models in light browns and the line of soft cool creamy laces which have individual and appropriate touches, but may be said to belong to the group of champagne tints.

The black and white mixtures stand beside the dark blues in the list of favorites and there is far more variety in this line than ordinarily. The black and white checkered plaids and broken chicken foot checks are again in evidence, but there are numerous other neat little designs on the same general order. Tiny triangles or cubes or octagons set together point to point are a relief from the long familiar checks and sometimes these little figures are so arranged as to give an irregular stripe line instead of an allover design. There are too some very good looking black and white checked stuffs which differ from the familiar checkered plaids in weave rather than design, having a suggestion of the loose homespun quality in the weave, which they are comparatively smooth and firm and very light and supple.

There are some good black and white effects in basket weave too, and all three designs, if in texture light enough to be practical for spring wear, make up into serviceable and charming one-piece models trimmed in black and, as a rule, relieved by a touch of color. Some of these models are of the utmost simplicity and made with a perfectly plain skirt with front and back panel and a plain bodice with sleeve and body in one and a big collar of black satin extending to the girle in front and of square sailor shape in the back.

A note of red, cerise French blue or emerald green is very often introduced into the black and white frock and bits of Persian or Russian silk or embroidery are also used as trimmings, but some of the very best looking frocks in the black and white are entirely without color relief, the color note being left to hat, parasol, etc., used with the frock.

Large quantities of metallic trimmings, almost all the Venetian or dull finish, are shown in the shops and on the imported models. Galons, laces, embroideries, braids of all kinds, nets, everything imaginable in the metallic line gleams dully on the trimming counters, and cord in the dull gold, silver and gun metal is in great demand for defining the high waist line now that cord girdles are so much the vogue of the empire frock. These girdles, ready for use with pendant or tassels, are also ordered in the trimming department, as are the same cords in black and colors.

The new foulards, while retaining all the charm and durability of former years, seem much more supple and the colors are distinctly more varied. Almost all of them have patterns of graduated dots or spots. Washable voile and French crape and wash marquisettes are expected to rival the foulards in favor for spring and summer wear, while for gowns of a heavier variety, the tailor made suits, there are beautiful French serges, Scotch hamsom tweeds and large demand, as are the finer laces of familiar character and the French and Italian novelties. It is said that this is to be a great lace season, not only trimming but whole frocks and coats of lace promising to have a great vogue.

Among the novelties in trimmings are such as coarse heavy cream lace net with intricate designs in colors wonderfully blended and often Oriental in their soft richness of harmony. There are wonderfully handsome bands and motifs trimmings too in heavy laces, such as real net, combined with hand embroidery on short or heavy lines. For costume blouses the chiffon and marquisette veiled effects are still slight tendency among the French designers to break away from this last popular idea and to experiment with the soft crepes, satins, etc. without veiling. There are a few very good looking blouses in the new foulards, very simple affairs redeemed by extremely chic and original notes in cravat or collar. The exaggeratedly large white dots distributed not too closely on a colored ground, which promise to be among the popular things in fashion, are especially certain, which will be universally becoming, were the design used for some of these blouses.

The spring millinery displays in the shops are unusually attractive this year. There is an endless variety of shapes and styles, from the most pretentious and enormous picture hats to the neatest and simplest toques of diminutive size. Many of the new frocks have an elliptical shape and a slight peak at the front over the face. The hats and veils are extremely beautiful. These models are usually made of a silver lace drawn over a corresponding color. Violet colored plumes or the flowers in natural semblances forming the trimming. Chantilly is conspicuous in millinery this year. A burnt orange straw veiled with black chauntilly shown in one of the shops, was unusually attractive. Quite as effective was another model of Chantilly over white French Calais lace. These two laces are especially pretty when combined in transparent manner.

Henzel silk ribbon is the newest hat in millinery, and very handsome are those broad, soft rep ribbons which, perhaps only because they are made of the very best thing, seem smarter than the familiar satin and taffeta ribbons.

Lace is extravagantly used in the spring millinery, white as well as black lace. Some of the prettiest hats are made entirely of white lace, shirred over wire frames, layers of net or chiffon, of course, being drawn between the shirred lace and the crude wire to give the hat a finished effect and whiteness.

Hands for the hair are extremely modish. Some encircle the head others are only half bands, terminating just below the top of the ear, or pass across the back of the head, supporting the hair.

Hands for the hair of black or colored velvet or satin, ornamented with sprays of small flowers and leaves made of satin, gold or silver, are extremely effective and can easily be fashioned at home.

KINGDOM OF ITALY IS 50 YEARS OLD

United Italy Came into Being on March 17th, 1861—Celebrations in all Cities.

Rome, March 17.—The kingdom of Italy looked backward half a century today and bowed low to the statesmen and soldiers whose patriotic efforts brought about the Turin declaration of March 17, 1861, when United Italy came into being and Victor Emmanuel was designated as the ruler of the new kingdom. It is the semi-centennial anniversary of this event that Italy is preparing to celebrate this summer on a grand scale. Beginning in the early summer and continuing until the late autumn there are to be an almost continuous succession of fetes and patriotic demonstrations from Sicily to the Alps. The features of international interest will be the great expatriations of Rome and Turin.

The movement which led to the unification of Italy had its beginning about the middle of last century. At that time Victor Emmanuel II., a most liberal and statesmanlike monarch, occupied the throne of Sardinia. His great minister, Count Cavour, was an ardent believer in Italian unification. Inspired by Garibaldi, Mazzini, Cavour and other eminent and able patriots of the time Victor Emmanuel joined France in a successful war with Austria for the liberation of northern Italy, and then began to extend the kingdom of Sardinia.

Fifty years ago today came the declaration of Turin, when Victor Emmanuel assumed the title of king of Italy. During the ensuing ten years province after province united with the new kingdom of Italy, and finally, in 1870, after a sharp struggle with the Pope, supported by France, Victor Emmanuel entered the papal states, entered Rome in triumph and from his new capital began to rule a united Italy.

STRAY NOTES FROM GREATER NEW YORK

Committee Appointed to Investigate Viscision in All Its Phases.

New York, March 18.—There is every reason to believe that the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church of this city, one of the most aristocratic congregations in New York, which includes among its members John D. Rockefeller and a number of other well-to-do citizens, will lose its pastor, the Rev. Charles F. Aked, at the expiration of his fourth year as pastor of the congregation. Mr. Aked is an able and ambitious minister and was in charge of a large congregation in Liverpool before he came to America to accept the call extended to him by the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church. From this beginning he made no secret of it that his only reason for accepting the call of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church was the belief that the enormous wealth of the congregation would enable him to undertake big work and to extend the usefulness of the church as well as of his pastorate. It seems, however, that the members of the congregation would either not respond to the enthusiasm of Mr. Aked or would not be so ready to enter into his ambitious plans. One of the things he had been striving for from the beginning of his pastorate was the erection of a new church building in keeping with the wealth of the congregation, but even that was not to be. The trustees "could not see their way" to expend the large sum of money required for a large new building. Finding himself unable to arouse the congregation to enthusiastic co-operation in his ambitious plans, Mr. Aked decided to leave this unresponsive congregation and to seek a more promising field for his energies and ambition.

War Against Viscision.
The war between the viscitionists and the anti-viscitionists has been carried on with a great deal of bitterness for many years in this city and elsewhere, although the general public has taken but little interest in the dispute. The anti-viscitionists, mostly women of both sexes, have furnished not only all the sensations, but also all the humor in this warfare. They have been egged on by certain sensational papers which readily published every attack upon viscition under big scare heads. The methods of the anti-viscitionists, by no means, have been above reproach. They invented their own statistics, made statements without bothering about facts and were frequently shown up as not only ignorant but untruthful. But all this is to be changed after this. A number of women have organized and incorporated a society, "For the Investigation of Viscision," and they propose to make a thorough investigation of the subject and to publish their findings from time to time, besides making efforts to arouse public opinion against the practice of viscition.

A famous humorist once said that woman always reminded him of the "Little Girl" of the nursery rhyme, "who had a little ear right in the middle of her forehead," because, just like that little girl, woman, when she is good, is very, very good, but when she is bad she is horrid. Even those who are not humorists know how angelic woman may be and, on the other hand, how devilishly cruel and vindictive. How unlimited the capacity of women for cruelty in under favorable conditions is demonstrated by the late tactics of the members of the Women's Political Union. They have taken to serenading members of the legislature who are known to be opposed to woman's suffrage. Of course, the practice is nothing but a form of hold-up or intimidation. That in itself is bad enough, but the most objectionable feature is truly scientific "raffinement" of the method employed. Why do they not mercifully use dynamite bombs or similar explosives instead of singing?

The proverbial woman angel was undoubtedly "his job" the other day, when a little old, scarcely more than four years old, fell through an open manhole into a sewer at Eighty-sixth street and East End Avenue. At more than one hour a rescuing party organized by the police, found the little boy alive and unharmed, but almost frozen up to his neck in the icy slush of the sewer. There was not a scratch on him and under proper treatment the little chap was soon again in normal condition.

Looking for Crooks.
The detectives are on a still hunt for two clever crooks who have continued their activity to the aristocratic portions of the west side and have visited and stolen cases of wealthy persons in that part of the city. There are two, perhaps more of the crooks. One of them, a negro, plays the star role. The method employed was practically the same in every case. The negro referred to, rang the door bell and informed the maid who opened the door that a Mrs. Somebody a friend of the mistress of the house, had sent him to ask for work. The maid would admit the man to the hall and would go to inform her mistress. Of course, the mistress had no work for the man but promised to let him in on the morrow. Upon returning to the hall the maid would find the negro patiently waiting. After she had delivered the message, he would depart with apologies, and not until later would it be discovered that some valuable overcoat, rug or other article had disappeared from the hall. It is believed that the negro stole the articles during the absence of the maid and passed them to his confederate, waiting on the outside.

For many years John Gallagher had been alderman of the Old Ninth Ward and later clerk of the Jefferson market court. He was a professional politician and mixed a great deal with the "boys." He was always believed to be unmarried and even his own brother and other close relatives believed him to be a confirmed misogynist. It caused no little surprise, therefore, when a short time after his recent death a woman applied for letters of administration, who not only claimed to be the widow of Gallagher, but proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that she had been married to him at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in 1882 and had born him eight children. Papers were produced to her by the court upon the proofs submitted by her. The case is somewhat unusual, even for New York, where more than in any other city one half of the town knows little or nothing about the affairs and intimate life of the other half.

REPLACE DIAZ? NO! SAYS LIMANTOUR

Mexican Minister of Finance Is Angry When He Reads Report.

New York, March 17.—Senator Limantour, Mexican minister of finance, in his apartment overlooking Central park, addressed himself to the question with an indignation foreign to his usual poised and courtly manner. He had been reading the report printed in some evening newspapers that American financial interests with dominant holdings in Mexico, had on foot a plan to procure the resignation of President Diaz and set up Senator Limantour in the executive chair. The suggestion that private capital could make Mexican administration and ministers provoked his ridicule and anger.

"How stupid," was the first word "I should be the last person to be suspected of lending myself to such a design," he added, "even if by a stretch of imagination one could suppose it true. It is no secret that President Diaz has been asked the question of resigning the presidency at the expiration of his term. I have always refused to become the duties which I now fulfill are those most congenial to me, and because I believe I can be of most service to my country by continuing with them. There is no truth in the report."

Adviser of Madaras.
"If it is true that the insurrectionists, or certain of their leaders, hold him in some esteem, that is because I have acted as adviser for the grandfather of these Madaras, who are now leaders in the present uprising. They have grown to be a wealthy family."

ity, and their wealth would seem to indicate they have prospered under the government which they now attack.

The Mexican minister was asked to explain a dispatch from Mexico City received this afternoon, that the government proposed to suspend the constitutional guarantees throughout the republic, with the explanation that this means a mild form of martial law.

"Not at all," he said, "what it means is not martial law, even in a mild form, but an abbreviation of civil procedure. Prisoners will be tried before a civil judge, but the court procedure will be curtailed."

"To return to President Diaz for a moment, I wish to make myself plain. Much has been said of the effect that his death would have on Mexico. President Diaz is truly a great man, and his death would be an incalculable loss to Mexico, but even a national bereavement does not mean that civil government would disappear from the face of the land."

Planning Reforms.
"It has been said, I think, that the government has under advisement a programme of reform independently of the present unrest. In any event, it is certain such a programme is under consideration and that its development only awaits the laying down of arms by the rebels."

"Now, as to this matter of intervention, that word has been much used and loosely, although I recognize that it has not been employed by your government. I wonder do the newspapers that print it and the persons who speak it so freely realize what intervention, so called, in this case must mean."

"When an armed force crosses the border of a neighboring state, without either invitation or permission, what does that mean? It means invasion, occupation. And what do invasion and occupation mean except war?"

"I ask the sober sense of the great mass of the American people to dwell on that word. What has Mexico done to deserve a threat of war? None has been made by the government, but the inference of such threat has been taken by the newspapers."

"We know that there are trouble makers in plenty, and that leads me to another point. I said this morning that possibly most of the money for the movement had been raised in the United States. Understand, I do not wish to imply that responsible persons have interested themselves. I do not say that much money has been raised, because much has not, but I do say that we have positive evidence from many sources to show that aggregate of small contributions from Americans has enabled the insurrection to endure even as long as it has."

THE SNOB AND THE SNUB.
At a dance recently a young gentleman somewhat inferior in social position to most of those present approached an alderman's daughter—"mightily superior" sort—and rather diffidently asked for the favor of a dance.

The girl looked him steadily in the face for a moment, then turned away with the remark:—"I'm sorry, but I'm—well, rather particular as to who I dance with."

"Ah, indeed!" was the quiet retort; "then we differ in that respect. I'm not a bit particular. That was why I asked you."

Then he left her.—Tit-Bits.

CHOCATES ANSWER.
Joseph H. Choate and Chamney Depew were invited to a dinner. Mr. Choate was to speak, and it fell to the lot of Mr. Depew to introduce him, which he did thus: "Gentlemen, permit me to introduce Ambassador Choate, America's most invertebrate after-dinner speaker. All you need to do to get a speech out of Mr. Choate is to open his mouth, drop in a dinner and up comes your speech."

Mr. Choate thanked the Senator for his compliment, and then said: "Mr.

Caught a Heavy Cold It Left Him With a Hacking Cough

Mr. J. H. Richards, 1822 Second avenue, East, Vancouver, B.C., writes: "Allow me to write a few lines in praise of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Last fall I contracted a heavy cold which left me with a hacking cough, and every time I would get a little more cold this hacking cough would become a lung splintering one. It kept on getting worse and I kept on spending money buying different cough remedies until a friend asked me if I had ever tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told him I was willing to try anything I thought would cure, and on the same day bought two bottles. Before half the first one was used my cough began to get much easier, and by the time I had used a bottle and a half my cold was gone. I am keeping the other half bottle in case I should get one again but I am quite sure I have a positive cure. Let me recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to all who suffer from a cough or throat irritation of any kind."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Depew says if you open my mouth and drop in a dinner up will come a speech, but I warn you that if you open my mouth and drop in one of Senator's Depew's speeches up will come your dinner's.—Ladies' Home Journal.
